I love art.
I love creating art and looking at art.
Whether it be drawing, painting, collage or sculpture; art has always been an important part of my life.

The past months have highlighted how essential creativity and the visual arts are for learning, connecting and wellbeing, and many people agree that engaging in the visual arts is more important than ever!

Children's Art Week runs across three weeks - starting from 29th June - and celebrates the many benefits that art provides for all of us.

Art can improve our wellbeing by giving our minds a break from the stresses of everyday life.

It can also just be a chance to get messy and have some fun!

So grab a paintbrush, get some ideas from the internet, and make your own masterpiece this weekend ☺

Children's Art Week will see thousands of children, their teachers and their families taking part in fun, creative activities at home and in schools across three weeks in June and July.

Venues of all types and sizes— from libraries to community halls, heritage venues and country parks, schools and of course museums and galleries across the UK—are hosting activities that will help children and young people to be inspired, engaged and entertained by art.
